

Public Sector Bid Seasonality: What GCs and Subs Need to Know for 2026

[Article originally appeared in www.constructconnect.com]

By Maila Kim

Every public sector contractor knows the feeling: months of quiet followed by a flood of opportunities as government agencies release projects in waves. Fortunately, this is not random; it's the result of bid seasonality, which shapes when public projects become available for bid.

What is Public Sector Bid Seasonality?

Public sector bid seasonality is the predictable pattern of when government construction projects are made available and awarded during the year. Instead of projects coming out evenly throughout the year, public projects tend to show up in waves.

Bid seasonality is determined by government fiscal year and budgets, public funding cycles, and weather conditions. For general contractors (GCs) and subcontractors, knowing these rhythms can help you plan ahead instead of scrambling when the rush of public projects becomes available. Tools like ConstructConnect® Project Intelligence support visibility into these waves, with real-time alerts and easy-to-search project pipelines.

Key Drivers of Seasonality in Public Bidding

Fiscal Calendars and Funding Cycles

Most public owners—federal, state, and local—operate on strict annual budgets:

- Federal agencies work on an October–September fiscal year and often rush to release projects in late summer.
- States and cities commonly follow a July–June budget cycle, which leads to more bids in spring and early summer.
- Schools and universities usually bid on projects in late winter so work can happen over summer break.

Weather and Construction Seasons

Weather plays a major role in when work can actually happen, especially for heavy civil and transportation projects:

- Northern climates: Most field work happens spring through fall; winter is dominated by design, bidding, and awards.
- Vertical/public buildings: Timing often aligns with academic calendars (schools/universities) or agency budget cycles.
- Heavy civil versus vertical work: Road, bridge, and sitework packages typically hit the street ahead of main construction windows.

Because of this, many bids are timed to match when crews can realistically build.

2026 Seasonality Forecast: What to Expect by Quarter

While exact timing can vary by region, public bidding follows a fairly steady pattern. Here's how 2026 is generally going to look like:

Q1: Planning & Early Releases

Public projects typically finalize budgets and release the first projects of the year in Q1. Transportation, utility, and municipal jobs are often put up for bid to prepare for spring mobilization.

What to do: Get your estimating team ready and reconnect with key subcontractors early. Tools such as On-Screen Takeoff® with Takeoff Boost™ speed up measurement and plan review by up to 95%. This allows teams to maximize this quieter quarter before project volume increases next quarter.

Mayor Bass Announces that the LA Convention Center Has Secured Three Conferences Due to Expansion and Modernization Project

[Article originally appeared in <https://mayor.lacity.gov>]

Los Angeles Mayor Karen Bass announced that following her approval of the LA Convention Center (LACC) Modernization and Expansion Project, three organizations have chosen Los Angeles as the location for their annual conferences. These conferences will bring 55,000 people to Los Angeles who will generate an economic impact of nearly $100 million and deliver approximately $3.4 million to the City of Los Angeles' General Fund. Renderings of the Convention Center can be found here.

The LACC Expansion Project provides these three organizations the needed amount of space to host their annual conferences. Without the expansion, the LACC would not provide enough square footage to host these events. American Speech-Language Hearing Association (ASHA) brings 15,000 people in 2031; American Geophysical Union (AGU) brings 25,000 people in 2032; and International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP) Annual Conference and Exposition brings 15,000 people in 2037.

“The City Council and I approved the LA Convention Center to revitalize Downtown, boost tourism, attract larger conventions and create good-paying jobs for Angelenos. The benefits of this investment are already being realized,” said Mayor Karen Bass. “These three conferences will bring 55,000 people to LACC who will stay at hotels in our city and visit our local businesses, generating nearly $100 million of economic impact. Our City Tourism Department and their partners worked to successfully bring these significant conferences to Los Angeles now that the Convention Center modernization and expansion will provide the amount of space that they need for their events.”

“We are excited to bring the ASHA Convention to Los Angeles and the expanded LA Convention Center in 2031, and to cultivate lasting collaborations with the city's hospitality community in the years to come,” said Krista LeZotte, Senior Director, Convention & Meetings, ASHA. “We look forward to seeing how the expansion will elevate the attendee experience and open new avenues for engagement.”

CALASIANCC Launches “Empower”

By CalAsian Chamber

The California Asian Pacific Chamber of Commerce (CalAsian) announced the launch of Empower, a multi-state small business development program designed to strengthen the capacity, competitiveness, and long-term growth of small businesses.

Empower is a CalAsian-owned program funded through the Minority Business Development Agency (MBDA) via its Capital Readiness Program (CRP) and the California Office of the Small Business Advocate (CalOSBA). The program operates across 21 states, providing high-value business development services and individualized technical assistance to eligible small businesses.

“Empower represents a significant step forward in how we support small businesses—not just through education, but through real, hands-on capacity building,” said Pat Fong Kushida, President & CEO of CalAsian. “By combining structured learning with individualized technical assistance across 21 states, this program ensures entrepreneurs have the tools, guidance, and confidence needed to compete and grow in today’s economy.”

Empower supports growth-stage founders and business owners who are prepared to strengthen their operations and execute next-phase opportunities. Through structured learning and tailored support, the program helps participants build core business systems, improve readiness for growth and contracting opportunities, and strengthen their ability to compete in public and private marketplaces. Services are provided at no cost to participants, ensuring access to rigorous, results-driven technical assistance.

“Empower reflects CalAsian’s commitment to building durable pathways for small business success,” said Anette Smith, Capital Readiness Program Director of CalAsian. “This program is about practical support, real capability-building, and helping entrepreneurs position their businesses for sustainable growth across the regions we serve.”

Program offerings include:

- Structured learning focused on business readiness and competitiveness
- Individualized technical assistance aligned to each business’s stage and goals
- Access to curated tools, templates, and resources that support implementation and execution

“We’re proud to partner with renowned organizations CMG Alliance, HUMANBULB, National ACE, Sequoia Lending, and StartCo, to deliver the Empower program and support small businesses as they build the capacity to grow and compete,” said Smith. “The program combines structure with customization, ensuring entrepreneurs receive support that is both practical and impactful.”

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Mayor Bass’ Shine LA Movement Brings Communities Together In Service Ahead of Major Events Coming to LA

[Article originally appeared in <https://mayor.lacity.gov>]

Mayor Bass continued her Shine LA movement in the communities of Del Rey, Sun Valley and Baldwin Hills. With the World Cup arriving in Los Angeles this summer, Shine LA continues to inspire Angelenos to take localized actions in their communities to ensure that every neighborhood gets to shine on the world stage. B-roll and photos available here.

“With the World Cup starting in June, we are inviting Angelenos to join the effort to get our city ready when the global spotlight turns to Los Angeles,” said Mayor Bass. “Through community-driven volunteer opportunities, Shine LA is inspiring residents to take pride in the places they call home, creating a stronger, more unified city that’s ready to welcome the world.”

“A day like this isn’t just about cleaning up a street or a sidewalk,” said Councilmember Adrin Nazarian, Council District 2, who represents the southern portion of Sun Valley. “It’s about taking pride in our neighborhood and showing respect for one another as neighbors. Events like these build trust between local government and the people we serve, and they build a sense of shared community among all of us who call this city home.”

“Sun Valley is my hometown, and I’m excited the Mayor is here today to shine a light on this incredible community,” said Councilmember Imelda Padilla, Council District 6. “Every year, our office hosts cleanups in every neighborhood across Council District 6 because real progress doesn’t start at City Hall, it starts with community action. Today’s turnout is a powerful reminder that when residents, volunteers, community partners, and all levels of government work side by side, we build cleaner, stronger, and more connected neighborhoods. Shine LA is community in action, and today sends a clear message: Sun Valley shows up, and Sun Valley takes pride in where we live.”

Mayor Bass joined community members to kick-off Shine LA in Sun Valley alongside Councilmembers Imelda Padilla, Adrin Nazarian and Board of Public Works President Steve Kang. Volunteers participated in a community clean-up at the Sun Valley Recreation Center followed by a resource fair to provide Angelenos with important sustainability resources and educational materials. Mayor Bass joined community members in Sun Valley last year after launching Shine LA in her 2025 State of the City address.

Joining Councilmember Heather Hutt and other leaders in Marlon Square, Mayor Bass continued Shine LA with a community festival centered in sustainability, environmental action and creating a cleaner, greener Los Angeles.

“Mayor Bass continues to serve Angelenos through collaboration and community partnerships, proving that when we work together, we can accomplish anything,” said Councilwoman Heather Hutt, Council District 10. “Shine LA brings people together, while creating brighter, greener neighborhoods that we can all take pride in.”

Volunteers also gathered in Del Rey along the Ballona Creek Bike Path to revitalize the area, as well as the larger Milton Street Park that is central to the local community. Shine LA is continuing to foster new volunteer opportunities at sites across the city, expanding its footprint every month into new neighborhoods.

With multiple major events coming to Los Angeles, like the World Cup and 2028 Olympic and Paralympic Games, Shine LA is empowering residents to build thriving communities that are more connected and resilient.

Shine LA is hosted every fourth Saturday of the month at various sites across Los Angeles. Angelenos can go to mayor.lacity.gov/ShineLA to sign-up for notifications when Shine LA comes to their neighborhood or to work with the Mayor’s Office to host their own Shine LA.

From Behind the Camera to Brand Authority: Sonia Tapia Photography Empowers Entrepreneurs to Shine

Visit Sonia Tapia Photography online at <https://soniatapiaphotography.com/>

Sonia Tapia once struggled to put her face into the spotlight, and she realized this fear was costing her business opportunities. As a photographer, she found herself hiding behind the camera, avoiding her own marketing and branding even though she knew she needed to be the face of her brand.

That personal journey of growth and empowerment became the foundation of her expertise. Sonia realized she needed to overcome her fear of being in the spotlight and get in front of the camera to grow her business. This revelation led her to discover the genre of personal brand photography and make it her mission to help other entrepreneurs and businesses overcome that same fear to feel comfortable and confident on camera.

Like many creative entrepreneurs, Sonia realized she could use some guidance. She wanted clarity on crucial elements like messaging, pipeline development, and the strategic planning required to scale her business.

Then, Sonia connected with the Inland Empire Women's Business Center (IEWBC), where she received support to transform her creative passion into a sustainable, growing business. She worked with her business advisor, LaVonne, to clarify ideas, tidy up loose ends, and gain focus and direction. Through the IEWBC, Sonia participated in multiple transformative programs including It's Your Time, Finish Line Finance, and Ignite. These programs provided her with the business acumen and strategic framework she needed to move from creative professional to confident CEO.

"I would say it's been transformational," shared Sonia. "The courses, workshops, and coaching taught me to have a lot of clarity on the business aspect of things, and just being around other entrepreneurs, I got a lot of clarity, and it gave me a focused direction of where to go. I was able to tidy up my messaging, my pipeline, all of those things that are required as a CEO. The coaching was invaluable because I know people pay thousands of dollars for this type of coaching."

The most transformational experience came through the Finish Line Finance pitch competition, where Sonia was selected as a pitch winner and received a $1,500 investment. "This experience stretched me in so many ways," Sonia explained, "because I had to put everything I learned together in an articulate way to communicate my business's purpose, heartbeat, expansion plans, and contribution to the community to judges and bankers. This process of compiling all my plans into a cohesive presentation was truly transformational."

Since founding ABUNDANCE MEDIA 888 LLC, doing business as Sonia Tapia Photography, Sonia has achieved $75,000 in sales while investing $20,000 of her own funds. She created an actual, reviewed business plan, and gained clarity on her pipeline and what was needed to achieve her client goals monthly.

The visibility from winning the pitch competition and her renewed confidence led to an unplanned increase in speaking opportunities at expos, conferences, and panels. This increased visibility has resulted in gaining new clients and expanding her business operations. Sonia now hires associate photographers on a per-project basis and is gearing up to expand her team with an administrative person, a goal included in her business plan.

Today, as a Headshot and Personal Brand Photographer, Sonia helps driven entrepreneurs stop feeling like the world's best-kept secret. She creates impactful images that instantly communicate authority and trust, giving clients the confidence to be unforgettable and turn their digital presence into a client magnet. Her personal transformation from camera-shy photographer to confident business leader and pitch competition winner exemplifies the power of strategic business support combined with personal determination.

Visit Sonia Tapia Photography to learn more about how she helps entrepreneurs overcome their fears and create powerful personal brands through professional photography.

Lion Dance Me

[Article originally appeared in <https://calosba.ca.gov>]

Lion Dance Me Secures Space to Preserve Tradition and Build Community

Visit Sonia Tapia Photography online at <https://www.liondanceme.com/>

Founded in 2013 by Norman Lau, Lion Dance Me was built on a vision of modernizing lion dance while preserving its rich traditions. What began as a small group of students quickly grew into programs across seven SFUSD high schools. Without a dedicated practice space, they transformed Chinatown's Grant Avenue into their training ground, fostering a passionate community. By 2019, Lion Dance Me was performing more than 400 shows annually, had secured their first international performance, and competed in their first world championship.

Norman's passion lies in modernizing lion dance while honoring its deep cultural roots, using it as a way to bring people together. Beyond performance, he envisioned creating a safe and welcoming space where youth and community members could learn, grow, and find belonging.

Through lion dance, he not only preserves tradition but also builds bridges across generations, offering participants a place to develop discipline, teamwork, and pride in their heritage.

As the business continued to grow, Norman faced a critical challenge: he had outgrown his existing warehouse space but needed to secure financing to purchase a larger facility that could support his expanding operations. Navigating the complex process of commercial loans and understanding SBA requirements proved daunting, and Norman needed expert guidance to strengthen his bankability and identify the right lending partners.

Norman connected with the San José MBDA Business Center, which helped guide him through the complex process of securing a loan. The Center provided comprehensive support with financial projections, helped identify the right lender, and worked to strengthen his bankability. Throughout the process, the Center offered clear explanations at every step, set realistic expectations, and provided hands-on support that built trust and confidence.
