[ Article originally appeared in <https://dot.ca.gov> ]

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW: Caltrans has awarded the first GenAI vendor contracts in California history, testing innovative solutions to protect vulnerable road users and improve overall traffic management.

Caltrans, in partnership with the California Department of Technology (CDT) and the Department of General Services (DGS), today announced historic contracts as California seeks to harness the power of Generative Artificial Intelligence (GenAI) to protect vulnerable road users and improve traffic flows throughout the state.

Deloitte Consulting, LLP and INRIX, Inc. were the selected vendors to investigate near misses of injuries/fatalities to identify risky areas and monitor interventions designed to increase safety of vulnerable road users.

Accenture, LLP and Deloitte Consulting, LLP were the selected vendors to process and interpret complex data to improve traffic pattern analysis, address bottlenecks, and enhance overall traffic management.

“With an average of 12 Californians dying on our roadways every day, we need to use every tool available to end the roadway crisis and reach our goal of zero traffic fatalities and serious injuries by 2050. Today represents an important step in exploring how GenAI can help save lives. I applaud Governor Newsom and Secretary Tong for being at the forefront of testing how to responsibly harness this cutting-edge technology to help solve some of our most challenging transportation issues and improve the lives of all Californians.”

- Toks Omishakin,
California Transportation Secretary

“Caltrans has historically been an early adopter of new technology and working with these GenAI companies is another example of our forward-thinking approach. We are excited and optimistic of the ideas and solutions these vendors are working on in terms of improving safety on the highways and limiting gridlock in our busiest corridors.”

- Tony Tavares, Caltrans Director

The selected vendors will collaborate with Caltrans to test their technology in a controlled environment with publicly available data to determine if it can help find innovative solutions to two of the state’s most complex transportation challenges: roadway safety and traffic management.

Vacant to Vibrant Expands: Mayor Breed Announces New Storefronts Added to Successful Downtown Program

[ Article originally appeared in <https://www.sf.gov> ]

Mayor London N. Breed joined the Office of Economic Workforce and Development (OEWD) and program partner SF New Deal today to announce the second cohort of awardees for the City’s Vacant to Vibrant program, a component of the Mayor’s Roadmap to San Francisco’s Future that is designed to help small businesses, entrepreneurs, artists, and cultural organizations activate vacant storefronts.

The second cohort of Vacant to Vibrant expands to the East Cut, Financial District and Yerba Buena neighborhoods, and includes eight storefronts which will be activated by a range of small businesses, nonprofit organizations, artists, and makers representing unique concepts, operations, and industries. Each of these grantees will be offered a rent-free storefront space for three months beginning this summer with the potential to extend their leases.

Of the original nine properties involved in the inaugural cohort of the program, seven local businesses have signed long-term leases Downtown. These businesses will receive additional grant funding and technical assistance from SF New Deal, made possible through today’s announcement of Wells Fargo’s expanded financial commitment to Vacant to Vibrant having served as a Presenting Sponsor of the program since last fall.

“We are working every day to bring creative solutions and vibrancy not just to our Downtown, but neighborhoods across the City. Vacant to Vibrant is a great example of how we are filling vacant storefronts while supporting our small businesses,” said Mayor London Breed. “I want to thank SF New Deal for helping us to build on the momentum of this successful program that celebrates our business community as we reimagine San Francisco’s future. Together through public private partnerships, we are creating a stronger San Francisco.”

“With Vacant to Vibrant, we’re not only bringing in new businesses but also rekindling the spirit of our community,” said District 6 Supervisor Matt Dorsey. “This initiative is more than a project; it’s a commitment to restoring the vibrancy and vitality of our streets, creating opportunities for growth and connection for residents and entrepreneurs alike. I happily welcome these new businesses to my district.”

Pop-up activations were selected from a pool of over 1,200 applications and narrowed down through a comprehensive review process by an advisory committee made up of local business owners, artists, community-based organizations, and property owners. Finalists were presented to participating property owners, who made the final selections.

“Thank you to all the entrepreneurs, building owners, and partners that shared our vision in the Vacant to Vibrant Program,” said Sarah Dennis Phillips, Executive Director of the Office of Economic and Workforce Development. “This program created opportunities for small businesses to fill seven vacant storefronts in our Downtown. As we launch the next round, we are excited to build on this momentum and bring more activity into Downtown.”

Managed by OEWD, Vacant to Vibrant launched in 2023 in partnership with SF New Deal, a local non-profit organization that strengthens neighborhoods by making it easier for under-resourced small business owners to succeed. SF New Deal also worked to secure additional funding from Wells Fargo Bank, which donated $1 million to support additional grant funding and technical assistance from SF New Deal.

“San Francisco’s unique small businesses are the heartbeat of every neighborhood and are critical to the revitalization of downtown. It’s been inspiring to see how the first Vacant to Vibrant cohort has brought new life downtown, and we’re thrilled to continue to support their success and expand the program to more locations with exciting new activations,” said Simon Bertrang, SF New Deal’s Executive Director. “Vacant to Vibrant demonstrates what’s possible through strong and effective public-private collaboration.”

Mayor Breed Announces New Storefronts Added to Successful Downtown Program

“San Francisco’s vibrant economy depends on the strength of the small business community,” said Darlene Goins, head of philanthropy and community impact at Wells Fargo. “In pursuit of a resurgence of downtown San Francisco, Vacant to Vibrant is a prime example of the innovation and can-do spirit of San Franciscans working towards a common goal.”

The second cohort consists of eight primary tenant activators who may be eligible to extend their lease with the property owners at the end of the three-month period, with additional supplementary tenant placements underway who will also be present in these storefront spaces. With property placement spread across the East Cut, Financial District, and Yerba Buena neighborhoods, the new cohort includes the following small businesses, nonprofit organizations, artists, and makers:

The East Cut

- Aurora Centro: A petite San Francisco deli with a curious kitchen, offering eclectic cheeses, charcuterie, fish tins, chips, snacks, and more.
- Hungry Crumbs: San Francisco’s premier cookie bakery, serving up handcrafted, luscious cookies across the Bay Area.

- Koolfi Creamery: Small-batch ice cream shop offering flavors made with the best local and imported ingredients.
