WASHINGTON—Last week, Administrator Isabella Casillas Guzman, head of the United States

Small Business Administration (SBA) and the voice for America's 32.5 million small businesses in President Biden's cabinet, announced the launch of T.H.R.I.V.E. (Train, Hope, Rise, Innovate, Venture, Elevate), a training program for small business leaders, formerly known as Emerging Leaders. "T.H.R.I.V.E. Emerging Leaders Reimagined initiative will provide up-and-coming small business leaders with tools, knowledge, and access to the best and the brightest minds in economic development to help them accelerate their growth and help them become competitive in an increasingly global economy," said Administrator Guzman. "The Biden-Harris administration continues to do everything possible to empower small business owners to keep powering our nation's historic economic growth. of high-performing small businesses. Over six months, this intensive executive entrepreneurship training series includes in-person coaching, selfpaced instruction, mentoring, and classroom time. The program allows participants to work with a network of experienced subject matter experts in core business topics such as accounting, business strategy, marketing, and human resources customized for the unique needs of small business owners. "Under Administrator Guzman's leadership of action and outcomes, we are committed to transforming our learning ecosystem to be timelier and more relevant and meet small businesses where they are right now. We embody this approach with T.H.R.I.V.E. Emerging Leaders Reimagined. With reimagined curriculum building on our rich history, we will expand access to more small businesses and more locations, and increase accessibility through a virtual component.
